

Small market broadcasters would be hurt immensely by the requirement to record all programming. First and foremost would be the cost incurred for the equipment, not to mention any labor costs involved in maintaining and operating such equipment.

The listening audience is acutally the final programmer. In our market they will let you know if something isn't appropriate. It's my opinion that most broadcasters police themselves. Let's not have a case where the cure makes matters worse.

Thank you.

Marie Kiefer

--MMEXbf53e6371f73a8ece5a2f13593ee5a05--